From the President...

Something needs to get better. Do you feel this way, too?

The weather alone is enough to put you in a tail spin. And when can I put away my heavy coat and gloves! They are so in my way. And who works during Spring Break?! Hello!

I'm writing this on Worldwide Quilting Day. I'm using this special day as a reason to not clean house and lock myself in my "happy place". Bluebonnet log cabin blocks bring thoughts of spring.

It was great to see so many members at our March meeting. In April the speaker is our own Linda Winder. Linda's presentation is titled: The Good, The Bad and The Ugly. I recall the 60s spaghetti western. But somehow I don't think Linda will be giving us her family recipe for spaghetti.

Reviewing quilting techniques, searching for best practices is a never ending quest. As someone relatively new to quilting, I enjoy anytime someone is willing to share what they have learned. I find that I can combine what I have learned from different individuals for great results. It's all about what works for you and the intended use of your project.

I have written before about show and tell and I'm gonna write about it again. :) We were all encouraged to enter our work in The Quilt Show, meaning the BBQG show. (There are also other opportunities for showing your work with other shows). As everyone showed their work I was looking at what might be entered. The diversity alone was reason enough to put all work presented in the show.

I so much appreciated the comments and interest in my work from my fellow members when I showed my cute and colorful quilt for my grandson. It made me think that there is a place for simple, easy quilts that are meant to be enjoyed by a young one. At our quilt show our visitors should enjoy variety that sparks their imagination. We would hope that our entries would give our visitors the encouragement to try the art of quilting that we all love to share. So, let's share our quilts this year. Let's show that our membership is a wide variety of imagination and talent.

See you soon, Denise

Old Business –

- We were well represented at the Washington on the Brazos event. Thank you to those members who stepped up to help Carol Willson.

- Care Quilts – Rachelle Kubricht asked that BBQG labels be attached to quilts before they are turned in. Labels and fabric are available from Rachelle.

New Business –

- Bees – Jane Riggs asked that Bee representatives contact her and report about their Bee activities. We are adding Books and a Blanket to the Bee list. Charles reported Books and a Blanket will have a new meeting location beginning April 2nd. They will now meet at St. Thomas Episcopal Church, 906 George Bush Dr., in College Station. They meet the 2nd Tuesday of each month.
- 8 members shared their awesome projects during Show and Tell.

Program – Judy Beskow

Judy Beskow presented our program for the night. She gave us lots of information on what a judge wanted to see in a show quilt. We were treated to many quilts that Judy has made and exhibited in shows locally, state-wide, and nationally. Judy encouraged all of us to exhibit our quilts and share them with others.

The meeting was adjourned at 8:30 p.m.

Respectfully submitted,

Janet Kirkpatrick

We've welcomed four visitors (potential new members) since the first of the year and had a high attendance of 24 last month. Come join us anytime between 9:30 am and 2:00 pm on Tuesdays. There is always fun, fellowship and fabric to enjoy. Bring your lunch if you plan to stay beyond noon.

Quilt Cities...Other than Paducah!

Every April Paducah Kentucky becomes Quilt City USA. But there are other areas in these United States that also celebrate their quilt heritage.

Twelve years ago in Elkhart County Indiana, several persons gathered to discuss the idea of creating a new tourist attraction that would celebrate two loves of the citizens of the county, quilting and gardening. One idea flowered into a million blooms that beautify the county from May to October. This began the Quilt Gardens. Over the years, organizers and volunteers have learned together about how to create living art every year. Sometimes locations shift. Occasionally weather creates challenges. But every May, volunteers gather to plant 8,000 to 10,000 flower plants in a plot that in previous months has been plotted on paper.

Now let's head west of the Mississippi to the small community of Kalona Iowa. Kalona is part of the largest Amish community west of the Mississippi. Several years ago the community leaders worked to capitalize on the Amish heritage and the love of quilting.

Kalona is now better known as the “Quilt Capitol of Iowa” boasting a plethora of stores dedicated to preserving the art of quilt making. And they have taken the title seriously which is apparent through over 40 quilt designs paved into the downtown streetscape.

Organizations and volunteers engaged in designing, coloring and mixing concrete and making pavers to create the different quilt block patterns that are now permanently embedded in streets and intersections throughout the community.
